Hear What International Healthcare IT Leaders Have to Say About CHIME

“I came back with much more confidence and belief that Aga Khan University and Hospitals were working in the right direction, and I had many more ‘tools’ and wisdom to lead the people, resources and organization towards a patient centric environment. Most importantly, I had the opportunity to network with 58 other top IT leaders.”

Omer Manya

Director of IT at Aga Khan University and Hospital in Karachi, Pakistan, CHIME Healthcare CIO Boot Camp Alumni

“The CHCIO Program was a turning point in my career, I thought that I was alone with the problems and challenges in the organization but understanding how our colleagues had faced most of them was encouraging. Without any doubt the best profitable training in the last years.”

Vicent Moncho Mas, CHCIO

Director de Sistemes i Tecnologies de la Informació at Hospital de Dénia, Spain

“The impact of attending the CHIME boot camp and subsequently attaining the CHCIO accreditation has been immense. Prior to the start of Boot Camp I had been feeling disillusioned with my ability to have any significant effect on patient care from my role within Heath Informatics, and I was at a point of considering leaving the sector altogether.

The Boot Camp really made me stop and think about what I wanted to achieve, what I had to offer and how I could bring the two things together. Attaining the CHCIO accreditation has really been the icing on the cake; I feel re-invigorated and re-connected to my own goals and those of my organisation. I am now making the changes, to deliver the benefits that I previously doubted I could achieve. I really feel like I have a huge family (of CHIME Members) supporting my every step.”

Tracey Whitfield, CHCIO

Interim Head of EHR Delivery at Leeds Teaching Hospitals NHS Trust, United Kingdom

“In my experience as a healthcare technology executive, I’ve found immense value in having a trusted and established network of peers. It’s nearly impossible for a single CxO to have all the collective wisdom of every single leader in their region within themselves, especially if your organization has a presence across national boundaries. This experience and set of perspectives that a network of fellow leaders brings, therefore, is immeasurably helpful. In CHIME I’ve found such a global network. One that consists of many hundreds of world-class IT leaders. Furthermore, as an organization, CHIME does an incredible job of being a catalyst for ongoing learning and knowledge-sharing amongst its membership. From certifications to bootcamps to their semi-annual forums, CHIME’s commitment to sharpening the skill-sets of Healthcare IT leadership across the globe is unmatched. As an American executive who is now a CIO on the other side of the world, I consider CHIME and its resources to be one of my primary points of reference for best practices and always encourage my staff to get involved.”
